PLAYER PROFILE

13 LIAM PUE

For most 15-year-olds, hockey dreams are still taking shape. For Regina Pats forward Liam Pue, those dreams are already becoming reality. The Langley, B.C. native has quickly established himself as one of the most exciting young forwards — a player with the size, skill, and strength to impact the game every time he steps on the ice.

Last season, Pue turned heads across the JPHL, dominating as an underage player with the Langley Hockey Academy U18 program. He led the league in goals with 30, finishing with 50 points in just 29 games. It was an impressive encore after a historic U15 campaign the year before, where he paced the league in goals (40), assists (64), and points (104) over 31 games.

Standing 6-foot-1 and 170 pounds, Pue brings a rare blend of size and finesse to the ice. His release is lightning quick, and his hockey IQ stands out for someone his age.

Pue is eligible to play up to 34 games with the Pats this season after competing at the U18 level as an underager. Most recently, his development was rewarded with a call to represent his country. Pue will wear the Maple Leaf this fall, suiting up for Team Canada White at the 2025 World Under-17 Hockey Challenge, where he'll join fellow Pats first-round pick Maddox Schultz.

SCOUTING REPORT

BRANDON WHEAT KINGS

The Brandon Wheat Kings are off to a slower-than-expected start to the 2025-26 season after entering the year as a projected contender in the Eastern Conference.

Through seven games, the Wheat Kings hold a 2-5-1-0 record following a strong 2024-25 campaign that saw them finish fifth in the conference with 83 points (38-23-4-3).

Despite the tough start, Brandon remains a talented group led by several key players. Regina product Chase Surkan will play in his hometown for the first time in the WHL. Surkan has been one of the Wheat Kings' top performers early on, recording 11 points (7G-4A) in eight games. Jaxon Jacobson has also been a standout, leading the team in scoring with 13 points (2G-11A).

The Wheat Kings' roster also features a pair of NHL prospects — Brady Turko, a seventh-round selection of the Anaheim Ducks, and Carter Klippenstein, drafted in the fourth round by the Minnesota Wild.

JAXON JACOBSON

Brandon Wheat Kings forward Jaxon Jacobson has quickly established himself as one of the WHL's most dynamic young players.

The Brandon, Man. product first turned heads with the Wheat Kings U18 AAA team as an underager in 2022-23. His standout play earned him the honour of being selected fifth overall by his hometown Wheat Kings in the 2023 WHL Prospects Draft.

Jacobson wasted no time making an impact at the major junior level. As a 15-year-old callup during the 2023-24 campaign, he tallied six points (4G-2A) in just a handful of appearances — a glimpse of what was to come. He followed that up with an impressive rookie season in 2024-25, producing 44 points (15G-29A) in 51 games and quickly becoming a go-to offensive threat for Brandon.

Standing 5-foot-9 and weighing 176 pounds, the skilled left-shot centre plays with pace, vision, and a competitive edge that make him a difference-maker every night. Thanks to his late birthday (December 11, 2009), Jacobson will be eligible for the 2027 NHL Draft — where he's already projected to be among the top prospects in his class.
