PLAYER PROFILE

31 MATTHEW HUTCHISON

Regina Pats goaltender Matthew Hutchison brings a steady veteran presence to the crease after arriving via trade from the Moose Jaw Warriors on November 1.

The 19-year-old netminder from Nanaimo, B.C. has appeared in eight games since joining the Pats, posting a 2-6-0 record with a 4.07 goals-against average and an .882 save percentage. Despite the adjustment period with a new Club, Hutchison delivered a career milestone on December 7 in Saskatoon, turning aside 32 shots to record his first WHL shutout. The standout performance earned him WHL Goaltender of the Week honours.

Standing 6-foot-3, Hutchison's WHL journey has been defined by adaptability and experience. After affiliating with the Vancouver Giants from the 2021 to 2023 season, he earned a full-time roster spot as a 17-year-old in 2023-24, backing up WHL Goaltender of the Year Brett Mirwald. Hutchison spent parts of three seasons in the Giants organization before being traded to the Moose Jaw Warriors last year, where he posted a .899 save percentage in 19 games.

Now with his third WHL organization in the span of a year, Hutchison continues to lean on his size, poise, and growing experience to provide stability in the Pats' crease. His ability to handle movement and pressure makes him a valuable piece as Regina looks ahead to the second half of the season.

SCOUTING REPORT

PRINCE ALBERT RAIDERS

The Prince Albert Raiders continue to establish themselves as one of the WHL's premier contenders, combining elite young talent, veteran depth, and timely roster additions to sit near the top of the Eastern Conference standings.

Entering the heart of the 2025-26 season, the Raiders are locked in a tight battle for first place in the East alongside the Medicine Hat Tigers and Edmonton Oil Kings. Prince Albert owns an impressive 26-5-4-0 record for 56 points.

General Manager Curtis Hunt has supplemented his roster through key acquisitions, most notably trading for Dallas Stars prospect Brandon Gorzynski, who has made an immediate impact with 10 points in five games and Maddix McCagherty, who has seamlessly fit into the lineup, contributing 14 points in 11 games and bolstering the team's offensive depth.

Defensively, Prince Albert boasts one of the most dangerous blue-line pairings in the WHL. Daxon Rudolph and Justice Christensen anchor the Raiders' top pairing and provide elite production from the back end. Christensen led all WHL defencemen with 22 goals last season, while Rudolph ranked third among defencemen in goals (17) and fifth in points (38).

PLAYER TO WATCH

23 RILEY BOYCHUK

Prince Albert Raiders forward Riley Boychuk continues to emerge as one of the Club's most dynamic offensive drivers, turning heads in his sophomore WHL campaign at just 17 years old.

The Cochrane, Alta. product is currently riding a seven-game point streak, collecting three goals and 11 assists over that stretch as he helps power the Raiders' attack. Through 35 games this season, Boychuk has piled up 40 points (8G-32A), ranking first on the team in scoring while also sitting first in assists, a testament to his vision and playmaking ability.

Boychuk's offensive growth has been steady since arriving in Prince Albert as one of the organization's most prized draft selections. He was taken second overall in the 2023 WHL Prospects Draft, just one pick after Raiders defenceman Daxon Rudolph, and has quickly lived up to his high draft pedigree.

As a 16-year-old rookie last season, Boychuk made an immediate impact, posting 29 points (14G-15A) in 63 games. In the playoffs, the skilled forward contributed with five points (1G-4A) in 11 playoff games.

Known for his hockey sense, creativity with the puck, and ability to distribute under pressure, Boychuk has taken a noticeable step forward this season, becoming a key piece in the Raiders' offence.
