PLAYER PROFILE

24 JACE EGLAND

Jace Egland is making his presence felt when it matters most.

The Eastend, Sask. product has scored in back-to-back games to open the Regina Pats' first-round playoff series against the Medicine Hat Tigers, emerging as one of the team's most reliable forwards early on.

In Game 1, Egland delivered a clutch go-ahead goal in the second period, giving Regina a 2-1 lead at the time. While the Pats couldn't hold on in the opener, Egland came through again in Game 2, sealing a 4-2 victory with a massive empty-net goal to even the series heading back to Regina.

It's a continuation of what's been a steady upward trajectory for the 18-year-old. Coming off a career year in 2025-26, Egland set personal bests with 11 goals and 18 points in 56 games while reaching the 100-game milestone in his WHL career.

Known more for his defensive reliability than offensive production, Egland has built his game around speed and shot blocking. He's become a key piece on Regina's penalty kill, using his quickness and willingness to block shots to disrupt opponents and protect leads.

SCOUTING REPORT

MEDICINE HAT TIGERS

This marks the seventh all-time postseason meeting between the two Clubs, and the first since 2007 when Medicine Hat swept Regina in round two. Their playoff history stretches back over four decades, beginning in 1980 when the Pats claimed the series in five games. With both franchises rich in WHL tradition, this latest chapter adds another layer to an already familiar matchup.

The Tigers enter the series as one of the league's premier teams, and the defending WHL champions.

Medicine Hat put together a dominant playoff run in 2025, going 16-2 en route to their sixth title in franchise history, capped off by a five-game victory over the Spokane Chiefs. Their season didn't end there, as they advanced all the way to the Memorial Cup Final before ultimately falling to the London Knights.

That championship pedigree has carried into this season. The Tigers finished second in the Eastern Conference with an impressive 50-10-5-3 record (108 points), securing their second straight Central Division title. Their 50-win campaign marked the organization's best season since 2006-07 and their first time hitting the 50-win plateau since 2016-17.

PLAYER TO WATCH

27 BRYCE PICKFORD

Montreal Canadiens prospect Bryce Pickford is coming off a historic regular season, where he scored 45 goals, tied for second in the entire WHL and leading all defencemen, while adding 83 points in just 55 games. Among WHL blueliners, he finished second in scoring, just three points back of teammate Jonas Woo.

His 45-goal campaign left him five shy of the WHL record for goals by a defenceman, cementing his season as one of the most dominant ever by a blue liner in league history.

Already a two-time WHL champion, winning in 2023 with Seattle and again in 2025 with Medicine Hat, he knows exactly what it takes to win when the stakes are highest. During last year's championship run, Pickford elevated his game even further, posting 13 goals and 24 points in 18 playoff games, an elite level of production for any player, let alone a defenceman.

Since joining the Tigers, Pickford has totaled 79 career goals (including playoffs), a remarkable number for a player who scored just eight goals in his first two seasons in the WHL.
