MATT PARANYCH

TAYLOR TABASHNIUK

PLAYER PROFILE

44 MATT PARANYCH

Matt Paranych is building on consecutive career-best seasons with his strongest offensive start yet. The Edmonton product sits second among all WHL defencemen in scoring with 11 points (3G-8A) through 10 games, providing a steady offensive presence on the Regina Pats' blue line.

Paranych is riding a career-best six-game point streak after recording a pair of points in Wednesday's 6-0 victory over the Seattle Thunderbirds. His sustained production has helped fuel Regina's early success, with the Pats opening the season a perfect 4-0 at the Brandt Centre.

The strong start follows a 2025-26 campaign in which Paranych established a career high with 33 points (7G-26A) in 66 games. That marked a 12-point improvement over his 21-point season (7G-14A) in 57 games the year before. With his production continuing to climb, Paranych has become an increasingly important contributor to the Pats' attack.

SCOUTING REPORT

MOOSE JAW WARRIORS

The Moose Jaw Warriors enter tonight's contest with a 4-5-0 record through nine games, looking to rebound from back-to-back losses following a 4-2 setback against the Swift Current Broncos. The Warriors are 4-2 against East Division opponents this season as they prepare for their first of eight meetings with the Regina Pats. Last season, Moose Jaw went 2-5-1 against Regina.

The Warriors are looking to return to the postseason after finishing ninth in the Eastern Conference last season with a 25-36-5-2 record and 57 points, missing the playoffs by a single point. Moose Jaw has now missed the playoffs in consecutive seasons since capturing the WHL Championship in 2024.

Luke Moroz has led the Warriors' attack early this season, scoring a team-high six goals. He is tied with Landen McFadden for the team scoring lead with 10 points.

PLAYER TO WATCH

21 GRIFFIN DARBY

Griffin Darby is settling into his new surroundings on the Moose Jaw Warriors' blue line. Acquired from the Portland Winterhawks last summer, the 18-year-old defenceman from Swift Current, Sask., brings two seasons of WHL experience to his new club.

Darby has recorded two assists and nine penalty minutes this season as he continues to find his rhythm with the Warriors. Earlier this week, he dropped the gloves for the first time as a member of Moose Jaw during a matchup against his hometown Swift Current Broncos.

The move to Moose Jaw followed a season in which Darby tallied 13 points (2G-11A) in 57 games with Portland. That marked an offensive step forward after recording seven assists in 53 games with the Winterhawks in 2024-25. Now back in his home province, Darby is looking to build on that progress and establish himself on the Warriors' blue line.
